

Chapter 11

Occultism

Axel jumped into his first car. The head of the order had summoned an unscheduled meeting. It did not bode well. Extraordinary meetings always took place in the secret place and always only the brothers of the inner circles and special high guests from friendly lodges or orders were participants at the meetings. At this place certain magical ritual acts and also other extraordinary black magic events took place. For a long time, beings of another world had been invoked here by means of blood sacrifice rituals and their powers and influence were used to increase power and prosperity in this world.

All brothers of the order had enjoyed a lengthy magical training and knew exactly what effects their actions were having. Some of the members of the order came from families that had passed on magical knowledge only within the family for many generations.

Outsiders didn't know about all these things, nor did they even suspect anything about them. Most of them are even further away from this. Not only do they not know or suspect anything about it, they even firmly believe that all this is an impossibility and only superstition. The vast majority of people consider such things impossible because they cannot believe that there are other worlds and beings, nor that people could be so profoundly evil and unscrupulous.

After only a short drive Axel reached the meeting place. In his car he could simply enter the basement of the old building through a large black double-winged door. The security guard, sitting behind bullet-proof glass, opened the automatic door at the push of a button.

No outsider would suspect that such terrible things were happening in the basement vaults of the huge finance ministry and administrative centre. Even the security guards had no idea of the satanic goings-on in the great basement vaults.

Even the outer doors leading to the doors of the vaults of the order were specially secured and could only be opened by initiated members of the order. When the first access controls were passed, a member was already waiting for his brothers. Here a secret password had to be communicated in order to proceed. No-one could sneak in unrecognised.

The security barriers were necessary to ensure strict confidentiality. It would be far too dangerous if it became known what was happening here and, above all, who was involved. The order included members of the secret service, influential media representatives, politicians, lawyers in various positions, senior officials in ministries and decision-makers in the banking sector. But also big industrialists, a very big building contractor, a police chief, doctors and a psychiatrist, a real estate tycoon and highest representatives of various branches of the economy were members of the inner circle. There was also the owner of a large funeral institute with its own crematorium.

Here political influence and money flowed together. Here one brother supported the other. All the remains of the atrocities committed by the members of the order could be removed in the crematorium of the order brother without leaving any traces. Everything that was supposed to remain hidden therefore remained hidden, as all channels of a possible disclosure could be controlled. Moreover, everything that happened here was so far removed from the simple reality of outsiders that the events would be completely unacceptable and unbelievable for an ordinary person. Moreover, all those involved in any disclosure of the secret events would soon be dead anyway, and their credibility could be discredited as well, since the order had its connections and means to do so – everyone knew that.

No-one who had once entered the inner circle would be able to get out and get back his old life. He could not even keep his earthly life.

Axel parked his luxury car in the space reserved for him and made his way to the vaults. After he had gained access to the inner area, he went to the vestibules of the satanic temple area. Here there were conference and meeting rooms, as well as changing rooms and rooms for keeping the order's clothing, which was worn during special rituals or sacrificial ceremonies in the temple of Satan. The heads of the orders also had their own rooms here. There was also a special room for secret order writings and magical or other special readings.

Right next to the large inner temple vault, ritual and cult objects and various accessories for sacrificial and other cult acts were kept in a locked cabinet. Animals and humans were sacrificed.

The human sacrifices took place during special demon invocations. Some of the members of the order made pacts with these demons. Some of the magical and hypnotic abilities of the members of the order were obtained or even brought about by means of demonic astral beings. But also for research purposes or when certain individuals were to be eliminated, people were killed in most cruel ritual sacrificial ceremonies. Likewise, from time to time dissidents from their own or affiliated orders and lodges were sent to the astral level in this way to their demonic masters. There they experienced the consequences of their earthly actions according to their pacts.

Sexual magical practices in connection with satanic sacrificial acts were also carried out here.

Upon prior instruction from the Grand Master of the order, the servant of the order determined that everyone had to gather in the large meeting room first. Obviously, there was something to discuss first or a briefing should take place before a ritual act.

Axel took his designated place and chatted quietly with his table neighbour. They were still waiting for the members and the Grand Master of the order to arrive.

After everyone who had been able to come was seated, the Grand Master began to speak from the head of the table. Next to him stood his guest Aaron.

»My brothers, I have called you to an extraordinary meeting today, since we have some things to discuss which cannot be delayed any longer. I had thought that I could settle this matter without your help, but so far I haven't succeeded.

My brother Aaron from a lodge I know is here today. He's brought me an assignment from the head of his order and this assignment correlates with some problems we've had here before. It's about one of the targets we had to do with before. Now it's coming back to us again.
